外国教授要做关于文学的讲座, 让李华提出关于文学的两个问题, 教授在讲座上回答。应包括以下内容:

1. 向教授提出两个问题; 2. 说明提出问题的理由。

Dear Professor,

Greetings! We are delighted that you will be delivering a literary lecture at our school, and we believe it will significantly enhance students' literary knowledge. After collecting everyone's questions and points of interest in literature, we have summarized two questions that we hope to receive your expert insights on.

The first question revolves around the significance of classical literature in the digital age. We are eager to understand how these timeless works resonate with contemporary society amidst the rapid development of our era. Does the spiritual essence of these literary works still adapt to the progress of modern society? For instance, Shakespeare's plays were written in the 16th century, yet his profound depictions of human nature and universal themes like love, jealousy, power, and morality still resonate in today's society. However, some novels may be closely tied to specific historical events, and as time passes, the significance of these events may diminish, leading these works to lose resonance in later eras.

The second question concerns the role of multiculturalism in shaping literature. Given that cultural integration has become a prominent feature of our era, multiculturalism plays a crucial and positive role in enriching plotlines, deepening character portrayals, and promoting greater inclusivity and diversity in the literary field. However, there is a concern that writers may sometimes overly emphasize cultural differences, leading to the formation of stereotypes. How should we approach and address this issue?

We eagerly anticipate your lecture, hoping it will provide insights into these questions. Thank you for your time and expertise.

Best regards,
Li Hua

I hope this letter finds you well. Having seen your help-seeking post in TROUBLESHOOTER, and feeling compelled to offer some assistance, I have come up with several ideas on how to help you out of your predicament. Below are my humble suggestions and reasons behind them.

To begin with, it is advisable for you to converse with your parents. You can first ask about the reasons for their refusal — may be they are worried about is taking time away from your studies or other responsibilities — and think about ways to address their concerns. By explaining your plans for balancing cooking, studying, and other activities, you may be able to persuade them. The essence lies in thoughtfully considering both your needs and your parents' feelings, thereby fostering greater acceptance of your ideas.

Secondly, making them relate to you may also be instrumental in convincing them. Share your love for cooking by recounting the first time you prepared a meal and became enchanted by the art, or the moment you crafted your own dish through trial and error, deepening your affection for culinary creation. You could also describe the day when your parents savored the delicacies you prepared, which would undoubtedly stir their emotions. The wisdom is inspiring your parents to identify with you, to be moved by your love for cooking, and to become closer to your heart. If they come to understand your perspective, they may be more likely to compromise on this issue.

I sincerely hope that these suggestions will be helpful to you and that you overcome your difficulty. May you always keep your enthusiasm for cooking in your heart.

I'm Wu Lei. For the "Happy Childhood" exhibition, I have chosen to exhibit my cherished Barbie doll. This special doll was given to me by my mother, and she has been my constant companion throughout my entire childhood. With her beautiful black hair, pink skirt, and captivating big eyes, she exudes a sense of elegance and charm. I enjoyed dressing her up and experimenting with different styles, making her even more stunning.

The Barbie doll holds immense sentimental value to me, as she played a significant role in my childhood. She was not just a toy; she became my confidante and my dearest friend. During moments of sadness or conflict with my peers, I would turn to her and pour out my heart. She patiently listened, providing solace and comfort during my loneliest and darkest days. Her presence was a source of strength and understanding.

Reflecting upon my childhood, memories of this beloved Barbie doll never fail to surface. She remains a symbol of unwavering companionship and a source of joy. Regardless of the circumstances, she was always there, faithfully accompanying me. Through this exhibition, I aim to share the significance of this doll in my life and evoke a sense of nostalgia and appreciation for the simple joys and cherished connections of childhood.

例文2: This is Wu Lei's recommendation for the 'happy childhood' exhibition

Hello, my name is Wu Lei. I have chosen to showcase a cherished item from my childhood, which is a photo album titled "Joyful Childhood." The album is filled with pictures capturing the happy moments and memories of my early years. The pages are worn, some pictures slightly faded, but they hold immense sentimental value.

The reason I chose this item is that I believe the "Joyful Childhood" album is the perfect item to exhibit. It not only showcases my personal experiences but also represents the essence of a happy and carefree childhood. Each photograph captures a unique moment, whether it's playing with friends, celebrating birthdays, or exploring nature. By sharing this album, I hope to evoke nostalgia in visitors and remind them of their own joyful childhood experiences.

The album serves as a visual time capsule, allowing others to reflect on the simplicity and innocence of their younger days. It reminds us to cherish the moments of happiness and appreciate the importance of a carefree and playful childhood. Through this exhibition, I aim to inspire visitors to embrace their inner child, fostering a sense of happiness and gratitude in their lives.

In a world where we often get caught up in the busyness of adulthood, the "Joyful Childhood" album serves as a gentle reminder of the importance of embracing joy and celebrating the simple pleasures that define our early years.

Dear Tom,

After an investigation into the reasons for students' inactive interaction in class, I found some showed little interest in the topics discussed while others dared not speak English for fear of making mistakes. In view of above problems, I am writing to voice my proposals and reasons are listed as follows.

First and foremost, I propose changing to some topics closely related to their lives in that topics students are familiar with will give them something to talk about and make it easier for them to get involved, thus improving class activity. Apart from it, such teaching strategies as teacher repeating mistakes or peer correcting mistakes are suggested be adopted to encourage students rather than direct comments on their mistakes. Not only will these ways help students realize their mistakes, but also they will conduce to boosting their self-confidence. Last but not least, performing role-playing activities is also a good way, for it contributes to stimulating students' interest in speaking when they can put what they have learned into practice.

Conclusively, with student-based topics, novel teaching methods and role plays, I believe more students will engage in your class interestingly. Sincerely hope you can find them useful.

范文 2 (大意)

Given that students are unwilling to interact/engage themselves in the spoken English class, you have commissioned me to learn about why that is the case from my classmates. I'm writing to report/inform you of students' feedback and give you my suggestions accordingly.

Some show apparent indifference because the topics you have prepared for the class couldn't attract their attention, while others wouldn't speak anything for fear that they may make mistakes.

During your preparations for the class, it's totally acceptable to survey students concerning what their interested topics are by using specific features on WeChat. In addition, the use of audiovisual materials in class would be more than welcome in terms of drawing students' attention to your teaching content. While giving the class, you may divide the students into groups and direct them to focus on a certain task that requires teamwork. In doing so, it could lower the mental barrier of some students who have little confidence to speak up. More importantly, for some students not to give up too easily when they find the task relatively challenging, proper instructions and timely encouragement are also necessary. At the end of the class, talking to students whose performance isn't as good as you expected, is a feasible way to know more about what it was that caused the problem, so that you can work on it in future classes. In fact, you can even give spoken assignments catering to students' varying levels of language ability as a way to create opportunities for teacher-student interaction outside the class.

Hope what I have suggested above could be of benefit to your future teaching, and I'm really looking forward to the next spoken English class.

Dear Tom,

I am writing to share with you my findings about my classmates' ideas on your class as well as my humble opinion.

While most of our classmates think highly of your class, some of them are reluctant to get involved in the interactive learning process. When it comes to the reasons, a large portion of these students find the topics not so appealing while others are simply afraid to make mistakes.

As far as I am concerned, student interaction may be improved in the following two ways. First, we can add more fun topics such as social media, technology and celebrities to arouse students' interest since they can better relate to them. Second, Allowing various interactive activities may also encourage students' participation. For example, group discussion is a much less intense way for students to speak, for they don't have to be exposed in front of the whole class. Role play and musical performance are also great ways for students with stage fright to let down their guards. I believe that students will find the motivation to participate gradually.

I hope my suggestions may be of some help to you.

Sincerely,
Emma

Dear Tom,

After seeking my classmates' opinion, I find most students shrink from activities for fear of making mistakes and embarrassing themselves in public. Meanwhile, some topics in class hardly interest them. I'd like to offer some suggestions to motivate students.

Shy and timid as we are, we youngsters are always eager to prove ourselves and long for fun and excitement. So games are most welcome here and can work wonders in boosting confidence and breaking the ice. Guessing word meanings, acting in English plays and doing crossword puzzles are our favorite. And nothing spurs us into action like group competition. Let's have a try next time!

What's more, as far as I'm concerned, animation, comics and games enjoy massive popularity among students. We can pick such topics, form groups accordingly, and share our experience with peers. After our short presentation, you can make brief comments, and organize a follow-up session where further discussions can be made. In this way, our class can engage everyone either as a leader or a member in a group.

You always want nothing but the best for us. We are all grateful to your invaluable help in oral English. So let's deal with the problems and make progress together!

Yours,

Li Hua

假如你是明启中学高三学生李华，你的学校正在组织“走进历史”的主题活动，拟从三个活动里选择一个：走近老战士、表演历史剧和制作短视频。学校正在向全体师生征求建议，给校方写一封信。信中必须包含：

To whom it may concern/ Dear Sir or Madam,

As a history enthusiast, I am excited to learn that our school is organizing a theme activity entitled "A walk into History." Though the three recommended activities are all closely related to this theme, after comparing them, I would suggest choosing the first option, which is paying visits to war veterans, for the following reasons.

Above all, a face-to-face interaction with these war heroes enables students to literally "walk into history", in which way they can hear first-hand stories and insightful comments from people who have personally experienced the horror and the impact of war. Such authentic materials are sure to touch listeners' heartstrings.

Moreover, this activity serves as an important opportunity to bridge the disconnect nowadays between young people's perception of heroism and reality. Many youngsters romanticize the idea of heroism due to the influences of media, especially Hollywood movies. Meeting real-life heroes can open their eyes to the tragedies of war, making them realize the determination and sacrifice needed to become true heroes--guardians of their motherland.

Finally, such visits allow our veterans to pass on what they have learned from war, particularly their thoughts on peace, justice and patriotism, to the next generation, who, in turn, will reassure these old soldiers that their dedication and sacrifice will never be forgotten, whether in peaceful or turbulent times.

Although historical drama and short videos are also nice options, they both require a significant amount of time and expertise to prepare, which may discourage senior three students from active participation.

I hope you consider the merits of my recommendation, and I look forward to a memorable and exciting "walk into history."

Sincerely yours,

Li Hua

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Li Ming, and I am writing this letter with regard to the long-distance running exercise in the morning. Having heard of numerous complaints from my classmates about their physical discomfort as a result of this arrangement, I would like to offer some suggestions.

First, the time arrangement of the morning run is rather unreasonable. Since it is scheduled shortly after breakfast, many students suffer from stomachaches and digestive disorders. Secondly, the five-minute break is far from sufficient for students to recover and prepare for the following class. Third, while students gasp and pant in the coldness, the morning chill fills our lungs, making it even more difficult to persist in the exercise, not to mention the potential soreness and general exhaustion that lasts throughout the day.

My suggestion is that the run should be postponed to 4 p.m. before students leave school when the temperature is higher. Afternoon exercise can serve as a nice break from the monotony of life while helping us avoid a sedentary lifestyle. Feeling refreshed and energetic, students can also be better prepared for their evening studies. Moreover, if students have any sports clubs or activities after school, the run could act as a great warm-up exercise.

I hope that my suggestions could be considered and adopted and that students could develop a healthier habit of regular exercise.

Sincerely,

Li Ming

Dear Bill,

Having heard that you are troubled in choosing the course to learn Chinese, I cannot wait to write this letter to share my suggestions with you. From the table with detailed information of both courses, what I strongly recommend for you is Chinese Listening and Speaking.

Above all, the instruction of the course is filled with Chinese without any English, thus enabling an authentic environment of Chinese learning. As we all know, the proper atmosphere and language exposure should be given the top priority in language learning. Compared with the other course- story telling and writing, which has the combination of both languages, the course of Chinese listening and speaking can offer you more chances to think and speak in Chinese.

Besides, the course has an edge in the content, which is about daily dialogue. If made full use of, the course is sure to grant you plenty of opportunities to chat with others using the language, which plays an indispensable role in breaking out of the conservative mindset of a new language learning. By contrast, the course of story telling and writing centers around reading and writing Chinese, too difficult for a new beginner.

Last but not least, the arrangement of time is relatively more reasonable. Studying every three days can undoubtedly be conducive to constructing a new language system and absorbing key point so that you can be kept academically hungry and continuously curious about Chinese, which is obviously better than studying only every Sunday. Chinese learning may probably be an unprecedented challenge for a foreigner, so a coherent and sound learning pattern is definitely of vast importance.

In conclusion, I am more in favor of the course of listening and speaking and I really hope that my advice can give you a helping hand. If you encounter any problem in learning Chinese, I am more than willing to help.

Yours,

Li Ming

Hearing that you are going to start some courses on Information Literacy and seek our opinions, I am overjoyed to pick two that interest me most, namely websites design and big data processing.

A website of my own is always my dream, where I can conveniently share my interest and ideas about Japanese animation. Discussing those courageous, determined and funny characters has lifted my spirits and found me many dear friends. The techniques I learn in this course allows me to build a multimedia platform, community, and an amazing imaginative world with real friends.

Meanwhile, the big data processing knowledge may help me with the website update. According to latest statistics, I could better understand the recent trend, the hottest topic and what today's animation lovers are keen on. Only through such comprehensive analysis can I decide what content I should put on my site and draw most attention.

I sincerely hope you could offer us step-by-step instruction because we are mostly beginners and may try your patience. I'm looking forward to our first class.

On hearing the news that the lessons on information literacy will be established in our school, I give my priority to Information authenticity identification and big data processing.

Information authenticity identification is playing an increasingly significant role in such a world flooded with all sorts of information. Only after we have a good command of this skill can we avoid being deceived or misled, thus making the huge amounts of information serve us better. Without the ability to identify what information is true, for instance, the physical and mental harm would be tremendous since we might well be easily convinced by the so-called losing weight pills. Similarly, panic would be triggered when the unsubstantiated news saying the covid-19 is overwhelmingly severe and uncontrollable emerges online. Thus, information authenticity identification is of such great value that it must be chosen, second to none.

Serving as an aid of data identification, big data processing is the other essential course I would like to opt for. As it is an important approach to improving students' capacities of logical thinking and analytical thinking, which are also closely related to math and physics. While learning the skill of big data processing, students could also verify their own thoughts of diverse social phenomenon like "How to optimize logistics lines?" through the solid data evidence. These merits not only are helpful for the students' information literacy, but also may raise their math scores and even could help them fit into the world better in the future.

In a nutshell, in order to keep up with such a fast-developing world and be well prepared for the more and more competitive personnel market, it is high time we embraced cutting-edge knowledge and do our utmost to acquire as much as possible.

I've heard that you hesitate whether to go to the suburb park next Friday evening to appreciate the concert because of the long distance and inconvenient traffic. That doesn't matter since I will give my plan which can eliminate your worries.

I agree that the park is a little bit far from our home, and the way to the part is not very convenient. Well, here's my plan. Taking bus first and then the railway. Out of the railway station, as far as I know, are always taxis, so we can take one to the park. It sounds a little bit complicated, but so convenient, right?

What's more, the concert is so appealing that we cannot miss it. There will be several famous singers who we both love during the concert. That's a quite great chance for us to see them in real person. Additionally, it's undoubted that appreciating the concert can greatly relieve our study stress. What a nice choice which can kill 2 birds with 1 stone!

As has been discussed above, taking part in the concert must be nice activity which can leave us a deep impression. So I invite you again to go with me next Friday, being looking forward to receiving your reply. See you soon. (211 words)

样卷 2 (20 分 8/8/4)

I fully understand your worries about the long distance and the inconvenient traffic conditions. Its full of risks if you take the public transportation alone at deep night. But don't worry about it – my elderly brother, who is 21, is an experienced driver. Because he is one of the volunteers of the outdoor concert, he will undoubtedly give us a lift. Besides, he likes to communicate with guys younger than him, so there's no need to feel embarrassed!

Tell me your home address if you feel such planning can ease your anxiety.

Now let me tell you why I strongly recommend you to the outdoor concert.

First, the charm of the countryside park on summer nights is beyond our imagination! With the whispering of insects and the melody of music by your side, you can immerse into a harmonious world where humans are closely connected to the nature. Don't worry about mosquitos, the concert is held on a hill with not many of them.

Secondly, the context of the concert is also attractive! The classical versions of Mozart Symphony and adapted works interpreted by pop music band will both be played. Just expect the encounter of the classical music and the pop music.

Do you want to come with me now? you really should have such a "feast" after GaoKao, anyway. (221 words)

样卷3 (24分 10/9/5)

24 可读性好

I'm writing to persuade you to go to the park in the suburb with me next Friday night to enjoy a concert. When I put forward the advice, your consideration of traffic and distance became a barrier and bred hesitation.

Therefore, I write to you again to ease your concern and emphasize the reason why the concert is worth going to. From my perspective, we can take a taxi or share a private car with people heading to the same destination. In this way, the trouble of transferring and walking can be eliminated since the trip is tailored to our demand. If you are so worrying about the cost, for your information, we can go Dutch, and the road condition at that time is usually quite pleasant so I can make a promise that you will be able to afford.

I proceed to list the reasons that support us to go to the concert. Initially, music educates people. Believe it or not, music has a special sort of power when you listen to it in person. It inspires us to be courageous, fills us with power and even introduces us to deep meditation. Moreover, the concert also serves a purpose of charity. Artists and bands who attend the performance get no reward, instead, the money is directly donated to those people suffering from poverty and hunger. When you think about the event, you envision a bond between the rich and the poor, the givers and the receivers, and this moves me a lot.

From what has been discussed above, I've expressed my eagerness for you to go to the concert with me. I guarantee you a wonderful night if you are willing to do so, and I am looking forward to your response. Please write back to me at your earliest convenience. (300 words)

expiring foods

To whom it may concern/Dear Sir,

As is reported in the TV program, excessive foods approaching expiry dates have become a predicament in your supermarkets recently, for which phenomenon public opinions are being called. Obviously, if the problem is not appropriately handled, there is bound to be a huge waste of food, so I cannot wait to write this letter to express my humble advice. Personally, the following effective measures can be given consideration.

In terms of financial operation, sales promotion should be immediately adopted to avoid too much loss for your company. Inexpensive goods with high quality always appeal to consumers, which means the foods can be quickly-selling ones now that they become much more affordable than they usually are, despite the expiration within several days. As long as food is consumable, the cost can be traded off, therefore promotional food being a good choice for both buyers and sellers.

From the charitable perspective, food close to shelf life can be provided to charity organizations. Many non-profit groups, such as orphanages and donor agencies, are desperately in need of daily necessities, in which regard, these organizations are supposed to be the right places where foods in question could go. It is believed that "the hand of gift rose has a lingering fragrance", so making such donations can also contribute to your supermarkets establishing social responsibility and reputation.

In brief, never should people waste precious food, considering that there are still others around the globe suffering from food shortage and various ways can be found to make full use of such food. Promotional campaigns and benefactions are two adoptable alternatives to benefit all.

Looking forward to your careful consideration for the issue.

假如你是明启中学高三学生李敏,在一本英文旅游杂志对某国古城的介绍中,你读如下信息:本国游客门票每张5美元外国游客每张15美元。你对此很有感触,写封电子邮件给该杂志“读者来信”专栏。邮件内容必须包括:

1. 对该古城收费标准的介绍; 2. 你对此做法的态度及理由。

Dear editor,

I've read about the introduction of the site of an ancient city in your magazine and its charging standard catches my eye immediately. Native visitors only have to pay 5 dollars for the ticket, compared with 15 dollars for foreigners. If you ask me whether I'm in favor of it, my answer is a resounding "Yes!"

First, lowering the price for native visitors encourages their willingness to explore the site and thus they can experience the traditional culture. An ancient city is a symbol of the country's prosperous history and long-lasting civilization, which deserves to be known about by domestic people. They may be proud of their culture after visiting it.

Second, the higher price for foreigners won't prevent them from visiting. Having travelled long distances by various transportations, they are sure to be eager to visit the ancient city and won't be discouraged by the additional 10 dollars.

Third, this action represents a strong nation's attitude and confidence. We care for our own people, and we are totally confident of our own history.

In a nutshell, it's such a wise decision on the grounds of finance and culture. A price tag is only a number, but it can replace the strong spirit and long-lasting history behind, so I totally agree with this action.

Dear Li Nan

Hearing that you plan to develop a new app of students sharing clothes, I feel truly proud of your novel idea. Personally speaking, I am willing to share my clothes on your app. The reasons are as follows.

To begin with, it will be wonderful for me if I learn that someone that I barely know of can share my happiness of wearing my clothes. It feels like you are emotionally connected with someone in your clothes. Then I may naturally wish to know more about that particular "someone" and probably further deepen our relationship. In the end, a good friendship between me and my clothes mate might be built based on our common clothes. What's more, if other students can try my clothes through the app. In turn, I can also try their new clothes. Therefore, students can wear different types of clothes without actually spending any money.

What's more important is that by sharing clothes we will make full use of them. In today's material society, there are so many parents who prepare lots of clothes for their beloved children for different occasions, such as a dress for the party, gym suit for indoor sports. Moreover, the clothes can only realize their true value after they are put on a person's body.

To summarize, sharing my clothes on your app benefits others as well as me. So I am all for it.

I've been studying in Ming Qi for three years and it's time for graduation now! During the three precious years, it's lucky of me to meet with all these perfect teachers.

First, the "friend-kind" teachers. They are usually rather young and active. Compared with being a strict teacher I may be afraid of, they'd rather be my friends. During the breaks, I will usually have a relaxing and casual communication with them, the topic of which may be beyond the subjects. They teach, ranging from basketball, entertainment and chess.

Second, the “parent-kind” teachers. They are usually in their forties and may have a child the same age as me. Viewing all students as their children, the “parent-kind” teachers are always patient and caring in both study and mental and physical health. They will make the classroom a second home to all students.

Third, the “coach-kind” teachers. Regardless of their ages, they are always strict to us, which gives us great pressures. Students are demanded highly in class and, of course, the amount of homework arranged by them is always the largest.

Regardless of the kinds of teachers, all of them are the people who I appreciate, admire and love.

Dear headmaster,

So appealing is your plan to introduce a robot to our school that I decide to respond to your asking for proposals. From my perspective, a robot is more suitable for the position of librarian.

With regard to the range of service, a librarian needs not only to classify different kinds of books, put and find them in the right order on the right shelf but also keep a record of what books are borrowed and returned, while being a waiter in a restaurant involves serving the right dishes to the right table, do some cleaning and communicating with the diners. A robot can accomplish three or four librarians' work of sorting and labeling books at the same time, whereas it is pale before a man in communicating and tackling the unexpected (unpredictable) occasions.

In terms of working efficiency, a robot may be more efficient in doing the programmed, mechanical and repetitive kind of work. Therefore, it is more advisable for the robot to undertake the duties of a librarian grouping countless books repeatedly, thus considerably improving the efficiency of a human librarian. However, when it comes to the work of a waiter, who needn't work so heavily and fast as a librarian but do need react flexibly to the diners' requirements, a robot won't make a remarkable difference and even may not be more qualified than a man.

In a nutshell, it is the mechanical work of a librarian that the robot is more competent at. Hope that my advice will be of great help to your decision.

Hearing the news that our Students Union will organize a walking program and has put the drafted plan on the Internet, I'm writing to air my thoughts about it as follows.

To begin With, from my point of view, the time planned is not appropriate. As is known to all, the first day of May is the first day of holiday in China so that the center city of Shanghai is certain to be crowded on that day. So the date had better be postponed till the weekend before or after the holiday, thus ensuring that we students have a good taste of beauty of Shanghai. Moreover, I hold the idea that the route should be revised. Personally, after arriving at the Bund, it's not a desirable option to go back according to the original route. Instead, we students can go to other places of interest to go back to school, which guarantees a golden opportunity of witnessing the beauty of Shanghai.

In a nutshell, all the above thoughts are based on my personal perspective and there may still leave something to be desired, but as far as my strong wish to contribute to the program is concerned, I would be much obliged if you could take my suggestions into account.

Dear Li Hong,

Hearing that you have access to participate in an overseas communication activity in Britain which will last two months, I'm now writing to extend a helping hand, hoping that my suggestions that you should choose working as a volunteer thirty hours every month for the local community nursing home to gain an opportunity to stay in it for free may be beneficial to you to some extent.

There are three main reasons accounting for my proposal. First and foremost, only by working as a volunteer can you attain a free stay. Apparently, in contrast with the accommodation arranged by the host, you can save a substantial amount of money. In addition, staying at a community nursing home, not only can you be exposed more to real life in society and enhance your social experiences, thus helping you to get more mature, but your arrival will add colors to the atmosphere and reduce the burdens there as well. Last but not least, there is no denying that the interaction with the elderly can polish up your socializing skills as well as raise your awareness to cooperate with strangers, which will contribute to your comprehensive and coordinated development. As an old saying goes, 'We can gain both things at the same time.' So why not choose it?

I genuinely hope that you will take my suggestions into consideration. Best wishes that you will have a good time there. It is a golden chance that you will gain in summer vacation. In short, Enjoy yourself.

Yours sincerely,

假设你是中华中学学生姚平, 最近参与了一项研究性学习调研, 课题为“父母是否以子女为荣”。通过调研你校学生及其父母, 结果发现双方对此问题的看法有差异(数据如图所示)。根据图表写一份报告, 在报告中, 你必须:

1. 描述调研数据;
2. 分析可能导致这一结果的原因。

A survey conducted recently indicates that the parents who are proud of their children are twenty percent more than the children who consider themselves as prides of their parents.

There exist two reasons, which may account for this subtle difference. First, conservative Chinese parents are never accustomed to conveying directly how much they are proud of their kids. This tendency to conceal feelings hardly helps children develop a strong sense of self-confidence. Second, the current educational system excessively emphasizes the value of academic performance, thus forcing children to extensively believe that only by achieving excellent scores can they make their parents proud. This bias unfairly undermines the significance of talents for art and sports, which easily frustrates children and renders them more likely to underestimate themselves.

Without the genuine encouragement from parents and the reversal of exam-oriented educational methods, a kid would never end up with a positive grown-up.

Dear Sir/ Madam,

Since the Reading Festival is around the corner, I'm writing to recommend a picture which can be used in the brochure to remind the students of the pleasure of reading.

In the picture, three students are sitting at the table, discussing heatedly what they have just read. It seems that they have had a lot of fun through the discussion. Though it is admitted that reading is mostly a personal activity which needs quietness and concentration, as far as I'm concerned, it can also be a sharing experience when the same book is being appreciated.

Just imagine that you have read a terrific detective story with fascinating and intricate plots. You are so amazed by the genius of the writer and you can't help sharing it with your classmates or best friends, who turn out to have been deeply impressed as well. The moment you mention the book, the passion and enthusiasm about the story will explode which can never be gained on your own. My ideal atmosphere of reading is just like that, through which you can not only appreciate the content by yourself, but also have the pleasure of sharing the plots or opinions with your peers, which will ultimately enhance your understanding of the book.

To sum up, the reason of my recommendation is quite simple and apparent that reading, instead of being dull and isolating, can be full of participation and common interest. I sincerely hope that you will take my suggestion into consideration and I'm looking forward to your early reply.

Yours sincerely,

Pan Yang

Dear Editor,

I'm writing to express some of my opinions towards our school's English newspaper.

In my point of view, among health, entertainment and culture, I would choose "entertainment" to be the one to be eliminated. Although it's necessary for students to get some relaxation, I'm worried that the main news that the entertainment column offers will eventually turn into celebrity gossip, which is neither helpful to the growth of students nor to the development of our school. We are already living in a world that is crammed with useless information, and there's no need to add some more. The main focus of the newspaper is supposed to be placed on the students — not Brad Pitt's new movie.

As for the column to be added, I highly recommend the "career planning". I know that right now a large number of students still have absolutely no idea about what they truly want to become in the future, so it's quite urgent and necessary to give students basic understanding of what different kinds of jobs are like and what kinds of qualities are required for different jobs. This may help students gain a better understanding of their strengths and weakness and thus figure out their goals. To me, it's much more meaningful than "fashion" or "readers' feedback".

I'm looking forward to your reply.

Faithfully yours,

Cheng Fei

上海博物馆拟举办一次名画展，现就展出场所（博物馆还是社区图书馆）征集公众意见，假设你是王敏，给上海博物馆写一封信表达你的想法。你的信必须满足以下要求：

1. 简述你写信的目的及你对场所的选择；
2. 说明你的理由（从便利性，专业性等方面对这两个场所进行对比）。

Dear Sir or Madam,

I have heard from the newspaper that you, the Shanghai Museum, are planning to organize a famous painting exhibition. And you are now collecting suggestions about whether to hold it in your museum or the art gallery. I am now writing to express my opinion that the exhibition should be held in the museum. My reasons are as follows.

In terms of convenience, the museum has more advantages over the gallery. First, it is located in the People's Square, which is the center of the city. So people can enjoy convenient transportation such as the subway line 1, 2 and 8, which are available to people from nearly every district. It saves the visitors a lot of time and trouble of traffic jam. Another advantage is that it is easy to be found by those from other provinces around the country. After all the Shanghai Museum is a landmark of our city familiar to nearly every Chinese.

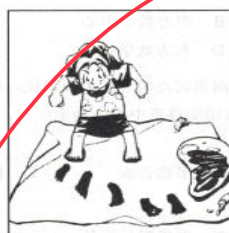

With regard to the professional function, though it seems natural that an art exhibition be set in the gallery, in a more general sense, I think the museum has more advanced facilities to make the exhibition successful and to preserve the paintings well. As we know, the museum has successfully held many national and international exhibitions and its advertising and organizing experience is of no match; also its staff is qualified and professional.

To sum up, I am sure the show will be fantastic if it is held in Shanghai Museum.

上周一，你在一所小学观摩了小女孩 Amy 所在班级的两堂绘画课（如图所示），回家后你用英语写了一篇日记，内容包括：

- 对两堂绘画课的具体描述

Today, I paid a visit to a primary school where a girl named Amy studies to observe 2 art lessons. In the first class, the teacher presented everyone with a large piece of paper and required them to paint whatever they liked on it. So excited was Amy that she applied the colors to her feet, using them as paint brushes. On the contrary, in the other class, the teacher just instructed them to copy the model painting. Despite the fact that Amy also painted her pictures earnestly, I discovered that she wasn't involved in the painting as passionately. I maintain it was the creativity and imagination that made the striking difference between the 2 classes.

Firstly, what impressed me most was Amy's sweet smile in the first class. It goes without saying that the happiness from one's creation and imagination will allow him to receive the real sense of achievement and satisfaction from his work. Only when we feel pleased with our works can we create something brilliant. Simultaneously(同时地), equipped with innovation spirit, we will be more likely to develop our potential abilities. Given that every one of us say the same words or do the same things, our country will be destined to become less dynamic and prosperous. However, it is a fair bet that more amazing contributions will be achieved with our initiative.

As has been discussed above, I firmly hold the belief that creativity and imagination are two invaluable qualities which success feeds on. Therefore, I will go to any length to cultivate my creativity and imagination to make greater contributions to my country.

To whom it may concern,

I'm writing this e-mail to apply for the project aimed to help children in poor areas. My name is Li Ming, a student from Ming Qi middle school. Last year, I was granted an opportunity to visit a school in the depth of a mountain and the experience kept flashing over and over, which had triggered the intention to shoulder the responsibility of helping them overcome the hardships and struggle they would go through.

There is a series of steps in my project that will be demonstrated as follows: Of the top priority is our organizing an activity to introduce the living and learning conditions of kids in poor areas and thus to bring home to the public the urgency of immediate action to be taken to help them out. Whether by donating money or by sending daily necessities from clothes to books, everyone should do his bit. Besides, a video play will be shot to convey the wishes, cheers and encouragement from us city people to them. Equally significantly, I along with my teammates have planned to visit those kids, to play and chat with them, which is bound to establish a solid connection between us.

If I were lucky enough to be granted the 2000-yuan fund, a quarter of it would be spared for the traffic and other costs, while the rest would be added to the money collected to be donated

- 描述图片里学生上课的场景
- 比较你同时期的上课情况
- 简单谈谈你的感受

Wearing excited and eager expressions, the children in the picture raise their hands as high as they can for the opportunity to answer the question put forward by the teacher. Apparently, all of them, whether boys or girls, sociable or shy are totally fascinated and inspired, and are always full of ingenious (新颖的) ideas.

On seeing the picture, I can't help recalling my first day in the elementary school. To the best of my recollection, we pupils at that time all felt exceedingly motivated to answer the questions asked by our teacher. More often than not, we raised our little hands almost at the same moment as our teacher put forward a question, all desperate to grab the chance to answer questions holding appeal to us. Judging from the excitement on our faces, the teachers all triggered our authentic yearning for knowledge in various respects and our substantial curiosity. Moreover, savoring (品尝) the pleasure of acquiring knowledge with obvious relish (滋味, 风味), we found that the pleasure of gaining knowledge far outweighed the embarrassment of the failure to answer the question correctly.

Quite honestly, I interpret my unvarying curiosity and yearnings to have played an indispensable role in my ongoing study in the following twelve years. Had I not been blessed with such enormous yearning for knowledge, I couldn't have been so motivated to delve into(钻研) the realm of science, literature and culture and let my potentials be exploited to full.

It is said that a summer camp is to be held by your school and a few courses are available to choose from. I am interested in gardening, in that I believe it features my character and personal benefits.

During the learning period, I expect to gain some unexpected knowledge. A radical technique I'd like to obtain is to know how to tell different species of plants and flowers apart. This helps me to have a clearer outlook of those in my garden. Furthermore, the proper cutting time and frequency to water are some other skills I want to learn. A little knowledge concerning choosing suitable soil or reasonable positions will also be a good choice.

The main reason why I choose gardening is that I want to help my parents with their work in the domestic garden. In addition, I find that we students generally lack the knowledge of gardening, missing a chance to have a word with nature, so that knowing the surroundings is imperative. Last but not least, by attending the courses, I will have a meaningful summer vacation, and drowning myself between plants will by all means add a brilliant touch to my life.

1. 假设你是李明，你们班级决定建一个班级网页，有三个岗位需要同学们担任，网页编辑，网页设计和文案撰写，请向你们的老师写一封申请信，申请其中的一个岗位。你的信中必须包括：1、你为什么申请？ 2、你能做些什么？

Dear teacher,

When hearing the news of the class webpage, I can't wait but apply for the post of design work right away. I've been obsessed with designing and painting for many years and I've received specific training for that. So I think I could be your ideal candidate.

Now I'm going to show you my plan. Firstly, in order to fully display the feature of our class, I'd like to divide the webpage into 3 parts including the programs of "the latest news", "excellent homework", and "our wishes". And what's special is that I will put these 3 items into 3 bubbles, which can make the page seem more creative.

Secondly, as for the decoration of the page, I would like to make a rolling line, showing the pictures of our classroom in a row. And along with the photos, I'm also considering adding our class song to it. Imagine enjoying the beautiful view with a nice song around. They could be a perfect match.

That's all I've planned so far. Of course, it's still a brief version that remains to be improved. But if you can give me a chance, I believe I can make it delicate, creative and quite eye-catching.

I'd appreciate it very much if you could grant me such an opportunity!

Dear Jane,

I've received your letter and I am pleased to know that you are making an attempt to apply for a part time job in your vacation. I have participated in several English interviews before so I have some suggestions to share with you.

First and foremost, you should be well-dressed and I strongly recommend you to wear a formal suit so that you can leave a favorable impression on the interviewer. Besides, while being interviewed, you must pay special attention to your body language. For instance, you should sit straight, maintaining proper eye contact with the one you are talking with. Last but not least, you might as well make some preparations in advance so that you won't feel too nervous in the interview. You can draft an English version of your self-introduction and your plan for the job.

Hope my advice can be helpful to you and I am looking forward to hearing from you soon. May you succeed!

Dear Headmaster,

I am writing to offer one suggestion on the program for decorating the school campus. The following is what I have worked out for some new changes for the school grounds, the purpose of which is to make our school a better place for us to study and live in.

I really want to suggest building a botanical garden in the school, for not only does it make the campus look more beautiful, but also provides us with a different approach to our book knowledge and have a hands-on experience in growing plants.

In fact, we can have our biology lessons in the garden instead of in the classroom. The students will surely have a good time there. Planting seeds, watering, observing the plant growing and discussing the problems are rare opportunities to us. The knowledge we obtain in this way is long-lasting and not available in classrooms. Don't you think it a wonderful program?

I hope my plan is worth your consideration and I will be proud if my plan can be of help to the campus design.

Yours sincerely,

4. 你 (Mary) 和你的同学想利用这个周末到学校所在的社区 (community) 做一天志愿者。请给社区负责人写一份信, 信请具体说明你们希望做些什么, 以及这样做的原因。

Dear Sir or Madam,

I'm a student of the school in your community. My classmates and I want to take advantage of this weekend to work as volunteers in your community. What we hope to do is listed as follows.

First, we'd like to help the cleaners sweep the streets in the community. As we always see the cleaners work hard to pick up the rubbish here and there, we are convinced that a helping hand should be lent to them. And then, their working pressure may be relieved and the working efficiency can also be raised. With our help, our community is certain to provide a better environment for the residents.

Second, we'd like to hold a party which is intended for the elderly. We'll play games with the old people and put on performances. In this way, the old are able to relax themselves physically and mentally and to enjoy a meaningful weekend.

Last, we hope to help give out letters. Considering that there are many households living in our community, it must be a challenging task to give out the letters correctly and efficiently. Provided with our help, the residents are bound to receive the mails earlier.

Those are what we hope to do this weekend in your community. If the activities are not arranged well, I sincerely hope that you'll give us some directions and advice. And I'm looking forward to your reply.

Yours sincerely,

Mary

75%的同学认为: 不必住宾馆	25%的同学认为: 有条件的还是住宾馆好

2、住哪里与考试关系不大	2、父母陪伴增强信心
3、父母陪伴反而增加压力

Dear editor,

I'm writing to tell you about a discussion we have had about whether it is necessary for parents to reserve for their children a hotel room near the school where the college entrance examinations will be taken.

75 percent of the students insist that there be no need for their parents to do so. In their eyes, it only means a waste of money. They think whether they can do well in the exams doesn't depend on the place where they stay. Besides, the parents' company will do no good to them and may make them feel more nervous.

On the other hand, 25 percent of the students hold the opposite view. They think they had better stay in the hotel if their parents can afford it. There is no doubt that the condition and environment there are extremely good and above all, it can provide them with a quiet place to make final preparation for the exams. What's more, in the company of their parents, they feel more confident of the exams.

From my perspective, every coin has two sides. The views referred to above are both sensible and acceptable. It all depends on the individual. But, so long as you are fully prepared and have full confidence, what difference will it make where you stay and who you are with?

Thank you so much for your time reading this letter and sincerely hope our discussion will be of some help to you.

Yours faithfully,

Wang Ping

1. 古人云：“天生我材必有用（There must be a use for my talent）。”请通过描述你生活中的一件事，说明人各有所长，无论才能大小都能成为有用的人。

As the old saying goes, there must be a use for my talent. I hold the truth to be self-evident that once can be a useful person however much talent he has. My uncle is a typical example.

When he was young, my uncle did badly in most subjects at school. Not only did he fail in math and science exams, but he also lacked interest in subjects of liberal arts. Though thought useless, he was fascinated by cooking. He went to a chef school after graduation from high school and discovered his gift for cooking. Since then, he has created many recipes and become a chief cook in a well-known restaurant.

People have their own strong points and their talents are in different fields. That is why different people can become useful in all walks of life. Many people are just like my uncle. They may not do well in some areas, but once their talents are discovered, they can stand out in a particular field. Moreover, hard work can contribute to one's success. Where there is a will, there is a way. As long as one keeps making efforts, his discovered talents can lead him to success.

In brief, discovered talent, combined with efforts, can make one a useful person. That is why there must be a use for his talent.

2. 最近一部由英国 BBC 拍摄的纪录片“中国老师来了 (Are our kids tough enough — Chinese School)”引起了广泛的关注和讨论, 请你结合一至两件亲身经历的事情, 谈谈你对中国教育 (或老师) 的看法。

After watching the BBC program, I spontaneously reminisce about my own circumstances and some fragments of memories pop up in my mind.

A stern teacher just rushes into my mind. She is my English teacher, who teaches classes in different grades. You may think it is too hard for her to supervise every student because of the considerable teaching loads. However, as far as I am concerned, her office is a place where many students go every day — they go for re-dictation or sometimes “re-re-dictation.” In fact, I am not a naughty student at all and I am also not the only “victim” for sure. In other words, going for dictation is kind of daily routine.

To be frank, it is not easy to follow her rules. We are required to have a re-dictation unless we can achieve an accuracy rate of around 90% in our dictation. At first, everyone hates her seemingly-cruel rules but gradually we have realized that it is not that difficult to pass her trial so long as we work harder to keep those words in mind. Surprisingly, we study more self-consciously, which is attributed to her contributions.

My English teacher is typical of all Chinese-style teachers — full of endless energy, unselfish devotion and an unwavering love for students.

3. 下课十分钟也许是同学们记忆中无法抹去的时刻。老师的拖堂、同学间的嬉戏打闹等都会成为记忆的一部分。请你描述发生在下课十分钟的一个场景, 并针对这一场景谈谈你的看法或建议。你的作文必须包括:

- 详细描述发生在下课十分钟的一个场景;
- 谈谈你对该场景的看法或建议。

Ten minutes between lessons is long enough for us to create an unforgettable memory.

It was the break between a math lesson and a Chinese lesson. As soon as the maths teacher got out of the classroom, many students put Chinese homework on the desk immediately, knowing that the Chinese teacher would check everyone's homework strictly. Some students opened the homework, making sure their homework finished. Then a wide smile showed up on their faces. On the contrary, some others wore an anxious expression with half of their assignment being blank.

They were the busiest ones, asking for top students' books and copying hurriedly with a regular glance at the door to ensure the teacher wouldn't come in and catch them copying. Those whose exercise was even totally blank had a vacant sight on the blackboard. They found it impossible to make up for the task and gave up, realizing they were bound to be punished.

In the fast pace of senior three life, the 10 minutes' break may become the golden time for those who haven't finished homework to fill the blank. No students can imagine how the world can be without the 10 minutes' break to get through teachers' inspection. It's also a good time to prepare reciting or dictating. Many repetitive or useless tasks are dealt with in the break. The break plays an essential part in students' making up for homework.

4. 友谊对我们的人生起着重要作用。对你最有影响的朋友是谁？通过具体事例说明他/她对你的影响。

My friends have had a great influence on my life, but Ann is the one who has influenced my life most.

It was in Senior One. We didn't speak to each other for a whole week because we were in a fight for a mere trifle. One day, I was idling along the corridor, murmuring "she couldn't be my best friend..." when I heard a quarrel around the corner. "Stop it! Don't you dare say that again? Jane never tells lies!" Shocked to have heard my name in Ann's angry voice, I stopped. "Come on! You two have broken up. Why bother defending her? ..." "I told you to stop ...!" growled Ann.

No doubt my overhearing the conversation that day contributes to an everlasting friendship. The essence of friend revealed by Ann has been engraved on my heart: a true friend is always the one who defends you behind your back whatever.

5. 你怎样理解“有志者事竟成”，试举例说明。

Many people believe that the proverb "Where there is a will, there is a way". The truth is deep and profound. As we know, as long as a person possesses a strong will, he will certainly accomplish a task no matter how difficult it is. In addition, if he persists, he will eventually succeed.

There are numerous examples supporting this argument. A case in point is that Karl Marx, who spent five years on his greatest work Das Kapital, won the respect from the people all over the world. It's apparent that a strong will is a vital factor to one's final success. For another example, Cao Xueqin met lots of hardships in his pursuit for literature, but finally completed his world-famous book Dreams of Red Chamber. Moreover, among us senior high school students, those who persist studying hard and make it eventually also are good examples.

All mentioned above tell us that if we wish to succeed, we must first have a resolution and remember the saying “Where there is a will, there is a way.” But one thing we have to notice is that a strong will must be accompanied by a right direction, which shouldn’t be blind. In short, whatever you do, please remember: Where there is a will, there is a way.

1. 请简要叙述图片，并谈谈自己的看法

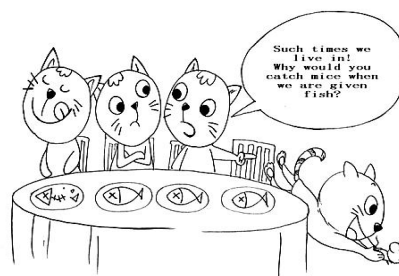

The picture shows that a boy is running hard towards the full score of the academic subjects like English, Physics, Maths and Chinese, with his parents encouraging and cheering for him at the end of the track. However, there’s no attention paid to the tracks of psychological qualities and morality by both sides. That reveals a common phenomenon in today’s society that so much emphasis is placed on the scores of academic subjects that psychological qualities and morality are this ignored.

From where I am standing, psychological qualities and morality are far more important to a student than even the full score of every academic subject. A full score only proves a student’s perfect academic level, but cannot guarantee his mental health and sensible behavior. Psychological qualities enable a person to know how to deal with hardships and difficulties, how to avoid psychological breakdowns, and how to stay positive towards life. Morality, in the meantime, gets people to understand the meaning of responsibility and helps them to distinguish right from wrong. Both are necessary parts constituting the healthy growth of a child into a wise and responsible adult. Ignoring their significance is neglecting the development of an all-around human being.

Therefore, more attention should be paid to psychological qualities and morality, which must not be considered inferior to those academic subjects by both students and society, because in terms of grown-ups, only those with strong psychological qualities and respectable morality can finally reach the full score of a successful life path.

As is vividly depicted in the picture, three cats are enjoying the delicious fish feast on the table while another one is instead chasing after a mouse, ignoring what's been prepared for him.

It goes without saying that many people in society are living like the three cats. These people are not willing to show enterprise to pursue what he does not possess, or rather, prone to be lazy, aimless and wish that someday someone would come to give him a helping hand and so forth.

Reflecting on myself, I'm also a bit like what's described in the picture, dependent on my parents and friends. For this reason, what is indispensable for us is to stop expecting timely help from whoever is willing to do your favor. Be aware of the fact that our destiny is determined by our own hands and nobody but we can create a better future for ourselves.

Let's be the cat that is chasing the mouse and keep chasing our dream until the Earth gets old!

In the picture, two crows are trying to drink the water in a bottle in two different ways. One crow, perching on the edge of the bottle, is drinking the water, using a straw. In contrast, the other crow is making attempts to drink the water by dropping marbles into the bottle, following exactly what the book has told it to do. This cartoon set me reflecting on how we should apply book knowledge in our daily life.

Surely, book knowledge won't fail the crow if it keeps dropping marbles into the bottle. Yet, only after draining his energy will it quench its thirst. By comparison, using a straw is obviously a much more convenient way. Confronting a difficulty in our daily life, some of us tend to stick to book knowledge, only to find ourselves stranded halfway or if we are lucky enough to get it solved, we are left burnt out. However, if we can be more creative, we may come up with better and more efficient solutions.

Stick to book knowledge blindly or break stereotypes? The cartoon will help you make your choice.

4. 上海市正提倡建设“节约型社会”，下图为某校两个学期用水、用电、用纸的情况。请对其进行简要分析，以“How to build an economized society”为题，写一篇作文，谈谈自己的想法。

Our city government is aiming to build an economized society. It is everybody's duty to work hard to achieve this goal, including us students.

The above report of statistics suggests that the expenses of electricity, water and paper in a school are surprisingly large and growing rapidly, which draws our attention.

As a member of society, we must keep the following in our minds. Firstly, make sure that the lights and all the other electric facilities are turned off when we leave rooms. Secondly, try to form the habit of turning off the tap after it is used and the waste water can be reused for more purposes. Thirdly, save paper as much as possible in our everyday life. It is even better to reuse it.

In a word, if we pay much attention to our everyday behavior and take action to reduce waste, we can make contributions to an economized society.

5. 下面这幅图片展现了一位小女孩放学回家后与父亲之间的对话交流情景，请根据你对这副图画的理解用英语写一篇短文。

这种现象产生的原因以及解决措施。

The picture vividly portrays a daily talk between Father and Daughter, which clearly shows the different preference in ways of communication of two generations. Father, who is sitting in the cozy sofa reading newspapers, would like to hear about Daughter's school experience. However, Daughter would rather her father followed the trend of reading blogs to get to know her.

As the picture demonstrates, the existing generation gap will be inevitably widened. With the fast development of communication tools, children easily find it outdated to stick to the traditional style. They are only too ready to put the latest technology to full use, while the older generation tends to feel it inconvenient to change their formed habit. Without a shared platform for communication, how can parents and children be expected to have a better understanding of each other?

Joint efforts from both sides are needed to change the awkward situation. It's better for parents to overcome their reluctance to change and get involved in children's life. On the other hand, children should not completely ignore the importance of face-to-face talk, which helps parents to know the details of their life. Only when both sides feel comfortable with the way of communication can the generation gap be greatly bridged.

1. Please design a memorable and wonderful one-day trip for either of the tourists to tour around Shanghai and explain your reason for the well-planned tour.

Tourist A: Hu Sheng, a retired engineer, who left Shanghai 30 years ago and never had an opportunity to come back for a visit, is looking forward to seeing Shanghai, his birthplace.

Tourist B: Da Shan, a 14-year-old schoolboy, who lives in a rural mountainous village in Anhui and has never been out of his hometown, is invited to experience a cultural exchange for a week.

Since you have never been out of your hometown before, I highly recommend that we see something different from what you have in your hometown. As you live in a mountainous village, which is certain to be surrounded by marvelous scenery never to be seen in a city, there is no need for us to look for natural beauty here. So we will unveil the cultural, historical and man-made beauty of Shanghai gradually.

In the morning, we will go to the Shanghai Tourism Festival where you can absolutely find something interesting about Shanghai's fascinating culture. A number of traditional entertainment programs are held and I'm sure you will enjoy yourself and get a brief idea about Shanghai's culture simultaneously.

The next destination is the Shanghai Museum in which we can spend the whole afternoon. An in-depth look at the exhibits will offer you a golden chance to unfold the scroll of the history of Shanghai, a unique city with a mixture of domestic and foreign cultures. After visiting the museum, a more general picture of Shanghai will be in your mind.

How time flies; as the sun falls, we are going to have a romantic cruise on a luxury yacht along the waters of Huangpu River to discover the man-made beauty of the metropolis. You can see numerous skyscrapers standing on both sides of the river, lights glimmering in the night sky, speeding cars along the road advertising their business. Shanghai is a fast-paced, vigorous and modern city.

One day may be not enough to deeply explore and understand the city's soul. But with the one-day trip I have designed, I will assure you of seeing the cultural, historical and man-made beauty of Shanghai.

2. 假设你将作为高三毕业生代表，在毕业晚会上用英文做一简短的告别演讲。

演讲内容包括：对高中生活的怀念；对老师，母校的感谢；对同学的祝福。

My dear teachers and fellow students,

Today, we'll say goodbye to our school. Now it's really hard for me to put my feelings into words. The past three years has been a wonderful journey with my teachers and fellow students, full of laughter and tears. Everything we have experienced here will be a treasure for life – hard work at study, help from others, the creativity in various activities and the love for sports, or the misunderstanding between students and the “punishment” from teachers.

To make our journey safe and fruitful, our great teachers have contributed their time, energy and love. We are extremely grateful for all that our dear teachers have done for us. On behalf of all the graduates present here, let me extend our sincere wishes for our school and respectable teachers.

It'll soon be the time for us to depart, though unwillingly. But it is not the end. It just means that we're going to begin a new journey. May every one of us have a bright future.

Thank you!

3. 当你遇到逆境的时候，你的想法决定了你的整个状态。如果你采用自我激励的方式，你就有自信和活力。现请你简述一件以前美好、成功的事情，并谈谈你借此应对当前挫折的打算。成功的事可以是一次考试，或一次竞赛获奖，也可以是一次成功的演讲等。现请你写一篇短文，内容包括：

1. 简述你经历的一件美好、成功的事；
2. 你当前遇到的挫折是什么？
3. 凭借你成功的经历，谈谈你应对当前挫折的打算。

There is no denying that everyone meets with a lot of challenges in his life. When exposed to difficulties, what you think dominates what you do. Therefore, the experience of success may motivate us to face up to the problems and lead to a bright future.

A long-cherished memory always dwells in my mind – Last year, short girl as I was, I ranked first in the running competition, which made me famous among the fellow students. Although I could hardly contain my pride in myself, I had to admit that my daily practices contributed a lot to my success. Maybe I am not a born runner, but my lasting diligence and perseverance resulted in an amazingly happy ending.

Accordingly, even though my study has been in a vicious circle for long time, what I have achieved lights the road ahead for me. As I know, a rolling stone gathers no moss, so I'll keep trying and go to my extreme length to fight for a good score; As I know, where there is a will, there is a way, I will never lose heart even there is a lingering shadow around me.

My experience of success benefits me a lot. It tells me to conquer myself.

4. 校学生会正在评选新一届学生会主席，假设你是该校的学生李青，有意参加竞选。写一份自荐材料，材料必须包括以下内容：

注意：自荐材料中不得使用你所在学校和你的真实名字。

I'm Li Qing, a student from Class 1, Senior 3. I would like to campaign for the chairman of the Students' Union of our school and my confidence is based on the following points.

Firstly, I am convinced that I am qualified for the position. As a top student in our class, I always get straight A's in the exam, which enables me to spend more time participating in Students' Union's affairs. Besides, being friendly to all my classmates, I am confident to build up a closer relationship between the Students' Union and all the students in our school. What's more, I have much experience of managing activities like class conference and social practice, which will surely benefit my work in the future.

Secondly, if I am elected the chairman of the Students' Union, I will make a difference in organizing student activities. Developing new activities that will attract more students to join is a must, and I will also change some of the current activities which used to be boring and dull. Failures as these changes may be, I will spare no effort to make the Students' Union a better organization to serve every student in other aspects.

As the saying goes, "Actions speak louder than words." I will try my best to accomplish my goal of making the Students' Union better, and please give me your precious support.

5. 有些人喜欢结交与自己完全不同的朋友，而有的人喜欢结交志同道合的朋友。你喜欢交哪类朋友，并说明理由。

It is universally known that friendship is one of the eternal themes in the literature of all languages. However, it is impossible for us to make friends with everybody. We have to choose true friends. Some people like similar friends, while others choose different friends.

It goes without saying that having similar friends has many advantages. You can feel full of energy when you have a group of old friends who would share you joys and sorrows. Moreover, old friends always know how to maintain precious trust and avoid potential frictions.

Nevertheless, a mixture of friends is equally advantageous. In the first place, frequent contact with different friends broadens your world outlook. Secondly, different friends can not only lead to new adventures but also show you new avenues in life.

Weighing up these two arguments, I prefer to have similar friends. For one thing, it is the similarity that brings friends together. For another, the friends whose characters, hobbies and social backgrounds are similar to me know how to avoid arguments. For the foregoing, I hold a firm belief that if one makes more friends he likes, he will get more help and more pleasure.
